- What's the Trade Bill?
- Why do we want an amendment?
- What are we asking MPs to do?

What's the problem?

- The NHS is still on the table because of
 - The US will insist on 'negative listing'
 - There is no known way of excluding services from investment chapters
- Including the NHS in a trade deal is bad because
 - It locks in privatisation
 - 'Ratchet' clauses drive privatisation up
- Drug prices are also on the table

What's the Trade Bill?

- Published in March 2020 'First Reading'
- A previous version was published during the 2017-2019
 Parliament this one was successfully amended
- The amendments have since been dropped but shows that similar amendments will be 'in scope'
- Second reading not yet scheduled

Why do we want an amendment?

- We don't trust the government wants to keep the NHS off the table
- If the government does want to keep the NHS off the table, they will struggle to do so
- An amendment could bind trade negotiators, provide broader and stronger protections to health services, pharmaceuticals, etc
- It sends a strong signal that the NHS is to be protected by future governments, rather than relying on the will of each successive Parliament.

What are we asking MPs to do?

- Table/vote for an amendment that protects our health services from the liberalising/privatising effects of trade deals.
- We're expecting Emily Thornberry to table an amendment for Labour until she does, more pressure on her would be good!
- We also need a Tory backbencher to table an amendment for the government - they're unlikely to agree right away but with the right pressure now, will be more likely to table one in response to Labour.
- All other opposition MPs should be encouraged to vote for any amendment that successfully protects the NHS
- The SNP are tabling a whole Bill to protect the NHS encourage this!
